

Swedish duo Molosses Crude stray from the stony path on "At My Feet (Hounds of Hell)"

Premiere February 17th on Monster Riff
Official video/single release February 18th

With "At My Feet (Hounds of Hell)" Swedish power duo Molosses Crude take a step sideways from the heavy blues/stoner rock trail they've been following this far, and find themselves with one foot in the borderlands between noise rock, hardcore punk and jazz. This track is faster-paced, with a relentless drive that ends up in a screaming crescendo, and the duo has dedicated it to noise rock heavies Unsane – more about that later.

As for the release, though, the duo's MO is the same as usual. The track is recorded live, all in one take, as can be witnessed on the video that will be released at the same time as the audio single. Drummer Tess also handles the vocals – that have a mean, wicked jazz flavour to them – while guitarist Jahn plays bass, rhythm and driving leads at once by splitting the signal from his hollowbody guitar into three amplifiers. The result is a massive onslaught of sound that belies the tiny size of the combo. "At My Feet (Hounds of Hell)" is a song that's hot as smouldering brimstone and cool as the night wind in the desert.

"At My Feet" will be premiered on Monster Riff February 17th, and officially released on February 18th. You can take a sneak peek on the video here, and you'll find a link to an audio preview here.

You know Delta blues legend Robert Johnson's "Hellhound on My Trail"? Well, drummer/singer Tess has encountered the same hounds, but instead of running away, she brought them to heel on the new Molosses Crude track.

"I really don't like talking too much about my lyrics", says Tess. "That might stop people from finding things I didn't know were there, and that would be a pity. When it comes to 'At My Feet', though, I can tell you that it's about facing the dark side rather than turning a blind eye to it. It's when we pretend that the dark stuff is not there that the really nasty things start to happen."

Molosses Crude's earlier tracks have moved in a heavy blues/stoner rock environment, while "At My Feet", takes off from a somewhat different place and has a certain hardcore punk tinge to it. The duo has dedicated this track to New York noise rock giants Unsane, and guitarist Jahn explains why:

"I was mucking about with the riff from Unsane's 'Scrape', but on a guitar downtuned to drop C, and as usual my fingers started doing their own thing. It ended up with a kind of quirky riff/bassline in 5/4 or perhaps 10/4 time. We do have some odd time signatures in both Molosses Crude and the acoustic duo, but that's just because the riffs chose to be that long. No one seems to have noticed that 'Pushing My Way' does not add up to a standard 4/4 meter, and that's just how we like it. It's one of the perks of working with a drummer like Tess, though – regardless of what time my fingers decide to rock to, she's there to pick it up and make it sound totally natural. "

Like many of Molosses Crude's songs, this one was originally written for the sister duo Molosses, where both Tess and Jahn play downtuned acoustic guitars. "At My feet" will also be included on the acoustic album that the guitar duo is recording this spring – but, as with the other songs, in a radically different version. The two combos inspire and cross fertilize each other and allow Tess and Jahn to go all in and take each concept as far as it needs to go.

Anyone who worries that Molosses Crude are moving away from Stoner-land with this new track can relax – the next release will be their first cover song, of one of the genre's most iconic bands. Scheduled for release in March. Stay tuned not to miss this!

BANDCAMP CODES: For earlier releases, we have sent out loads of personal download links for Bandcamp, but since only a fraction of these have been used and the rest gone to waste, we hope that those who need one can please send a message to info@evilear.com with something like "At My Feet BC code" in the subject field – then we'll send one (or more, if you are legion) along right away!

Enjoy and take care!

Some useful links:

"At My Feet \(Hounds of Hell\)" video (please don't share this link before Feb 18)

"At My Feet \(Hounds of Hell\)" preview on Soundcloud (please don't share this link before Feb 18)

Website

Press info

Spotify

Instagram

Contact: info@evilear.com